On that voyage he meets Elizabeth Bartlett, who seems as far beyond his reach as the stars which guide him across the Atlantic. Through the years that follow, Harry finds himself involved in the formation of the American Navy. It is a world of intrigue, violence and untold dangers at sea. But always the memory of Elizabeth is there ... and their paths are destined to cross again and again. The Sea and the Sand The Caribbean, 1800 The spirit of Harry McGann lives on in his son Toby. Protecting Yankee shores from rogue French ships, he's seen more action in his nineteen years than his father saw in an entire lifetime. But a chance meeting with the beautiful Felicity Crown, daughter of British navy-Captain, sets him on a path of reuniting the family with his father's old foe. Barbary pirates operating out of Tripoli have cast their net wide over the Mediterranean, disrupting trade, plundering merchant ships and placing men and women into captivity. When Felicity's ship is over-run and Felicity herself sold off to harems across North Africa, the war with these pirates becomes personal for Toby and he'll do anything and everything to find her... Iron Ships, Iron Men United States of America, 1858 Upon the high seas, Lieutenant Rod Bascom is saved by Jerry McGann, and from their encounter grows a friendship. After being dismissed from the navy for losing his ship, Englishman Rod returns with Jerry to his family home in the Northern United States. Whilst in New York, Rod rescues two beautiful Southern Belles, Claudine and Marguerite Grahame. This chance encounter shapes the course of his life: captivated by the beauty and naiveté of the sisters, Rod marries Claudine whilst all the while harbouring a secret desire for Marguerite, who has married Jerry.
