Reba Dailey thought she had everything she wanted...until a heart attack brought her face-to-face with death. No longer able to continue her high-powered, high-stress job as an advertising executive, her weakened body and near-empty bank account challenge her to discover what — and who — she really wants. Disappointed more than once by modern medicine, Todd Thorpe owns Healing Hands, a natural healing center where he helps people make the most of their natural energy. People like Reba Dailey. One heated kiss a few years ago told him they'd be explosive together. And he's hungered for her ever since. Now she's returned, and Todd aims to prove love and happiness are far more fulfilling than money and success.

He also plans to teach her how good natural healing can make her feel. One carnal night at a time.
