She was tall, blonde, blue eyed, and pretty. From the looks of it, she was a small town girl. Carrington Levesque, she had it all. She was the envy of most girls in Mackinaw City, Michigan, and she didn't even know it. Her boyfriend was the captain of the football team and there were rumors that they would be married before college was over. She looked like she had everything she ever wanted. Except she didn't. There were things bubbling under the surface that she hadn't told anyone. And then Eli Warren came to town; he was fresh out of jail and looking for a new start.

Moving up north was the last thing he wanted to do, but the judge hadn't given him a choice. He was looking to finish out his probation and put his past behind him. To most people, he was just another thug from Detroit, but he had plans on being something... someone, if he could just catch a break.

And he found that break in Carrington. Follow the love story that will open your mind, and capture your heart
